1 The Upper Cretaceous rocks of the British Isles

Introduction

Definition of the Upper Cretaceous Series

Global geological setting

Upper Cretaceous palaeogeography, climate and sea-level curves

Upper Cretaceous tectonic setting in Europe

The rocks of the Upper Cretaceous Series

Chalk

Marly chalk and marl seams

Diagenetic effects: nodular chalks, chalkstones, hardgrounds, soft and hard chalks

Flints and trace fossil stratigraphy

Greensands, chert beds and limestones

Upper Cretaceous stratigraphical framework

Upper Cretaceous lithostratigraphy in the British Isles

Cyclostratigraphy, episodic events and chemostratigraphy

Upper Cretaceous biostratigraphy in the British Isles

Correlation

2 Fossils of the Chalk and the ecology of the Upper Cretaceous Chalk seas

Fossils of the Chalk

Key biostratigraphical indices

Cephalopods: ammonites

Cephalopods: belemnites

Bivalves: inoceramids Other bivalves

Brachiopods

Sea urchins: the echinoids Sea lilies and feather stars: the crinoids

Trace fossils

Microfossils

The ecology of the Chalk seas

Integrated ecology; body fossils, trace fossils and isotopes

Summary

3 Southern Province, England

Introduction

Tectonic structure and sedimentation history

Stratigraphy

Lithostratigraphy of the Chalk in the Southern Province

Grey Chalk Subgroup

White Chalk Subgroup

South-west England (south-east Devon, Somerset and west Dorset)

Biostratigraphy and chronostratigraphy

Hooken Cliff, south-east Devon

Wilmington Quarry, south-east Devon

Reeds Farm Pit, Wilmington, south-east Devon

Furley Chalk Pit, Membury, south-east Devon
